The Canadian Home Economics Association maintains a national office in Ottawa. It is located at Suite 805, 151 Slater Street, and provides the center of membership processing and general administration of the national organization. The national office is staffed by three individuals: Diana Smith, Executive Director, Doris Neufeld, Administrative Secretary, and Judith Young, Membership Secretary. Sharon Channer, International Development Office, and secretary, Jean Boyd, have joined the staff this year.

NOTES TO THE ANNUAL REPORT

The 1983 Annual Report of the Canadian Home Economics Association contains an overview of the activities and initiatives of CHEA, and a listing of many of the people who have been actively involved in shaping the nature of the organization. If you are interested in more information related to any of the programs mentioned, please address your comments to the specific executive member, committee chairman, or affiliated group president concerned. The CHEA National Office would be pleased to appropriately direct your request should you so desire.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT
Margaret B.C. Wallace

The time for annual reporting comes around incredibly quickly ! A very busy year for an enthusiastic Executive and Board of Directors, herewith are some highlights.

Thanks to the highly successful Conference '82 Edmonton, an excellent profit was realized which has much reduced the budget deficit. However, due to continuing higher costs of communication, administration and travel, the association's finances are still a cause for concern, and the need to raise funds on an on-going basis is essential. A fund raising policy has been developed; and at the January Board meeting, initial planning began for organizing travelling workshops. Affiliates have been asked to identify specific topic interests and speakers; and with sufficient support, it is hoped to run the first of these in the fall. Thus a service to members will be provided along with, it is hoped, financial benefit to the association.

This is also part of long-range planning which involves priorizing goals, needs and services with corresponding costs. The Finance Committee is very active and is providing valuable guidance on the change to program budgeting.

After lengthy discussion, especially over the past three years, a new structure proposal, approved by the Board members at the mid-year meeting, will be presented at Conference '83 Saint John. It is the distillation of much thought and discussion at all levels and merits your serious consideration.

The final reports of the Professional Development Committee and its task forces will also be presented through the Issues Forum. This is the culmination of four years' study and research, and our decisions will be significant in the future direction of the association and the profession. I urge you to participate in this important session in Saint John.

National office continues to operate smoothly and efficiently under the able direction of Diana Smith, the Executive Director. A new staff member, Sharon Channer, was welcomed in late January. She is the International Development Officer and has already been involved in several CIDA projects.

In light of budget constraints, the mid-year meeting in late January in Montreal took the form of an extended Executive meeting. We were happy to welcome twenty-five Board members; and thanks to excellent arrangements by the Quebec Provincial Director and support from the two provincial affiliates, business, discussion and social aspects were most productive. At that meeting we were able to congratulate officially the P.E.I. Provincial Director, Professor Doris Anderson, on her recent Order of Canada Award. As well as a highly personal honour, it is indeed one for the association and the home economics profession.

News from Provincial Directors, Chairmen of active standing committees, Operation Alerts and correspondence on many matters and concerns continue to flow into the Executive. Two-way communication has been very active and rewarding. The bilingual Executive meeting minutes initiated this year appear to have met favourable response and are part of the commitment to fuller bilingualism to serve members of both language groups.

My sincere thanks to an involved, caring Executive who have shared with me the concerns and decisions of the past year. With their and your support, I look forward to the next.

PRESIDENT-ELECT'S REPORT
Elizabeth Dowdeswell

"Each of us is responsible for everything to everyone else."
F. Dostoevski

This has been a particularly challenging year for the Executive of CHEA; and because of this, my experiences on the Executive have been most enriching.

Your Executive has accepted the responsibility of providing creative leadership to meet the need for greater member services and thus for greater financial resources. In turn, we imposed on you, the membership, a responsibility to contribute to your professional organization.

It is not surprising that my first year on the Executive has been a revealing one. My responsibility for communication with Standing Committees has been greatly tested by the growing need for a sustained communications network. Our standing committees are most sensitive to the importance of information sharing. They more than justify their existence because they are "action" committees, and the sustaining strength of the organization is largely to be found in their work. In their membership, volunteerism finds its highest expression.

A stimulating visit to Edmonton, Alberta for the 1983 ACHES Conference reminded me of how crucial an element in the professional organization is the graduate of tomorrow. Their freshness and spontaneity in problem-solving should be an inspiration to us.

I look forward to participating in the work of the national conference in New Brunswick this year, where we will all have an opportunity to assess the efforts of our Executive and standing committees. It will be a great occasion to share our professional interests and to accept new and greater responsibilities for another challenging year.

VICE-PRESIDENT'S REPORT
R. Anne Christie

The Provincial Directors and the affiliated groups respond through the Vice-President to the Executive Committee. Channels of communication have been through direct contact with individuals, correspondence and by telephone. Increased participation and involvement has been evident throughout the provinces and territories. There are presently 32 affiliated groups, and an application from Parklands Home Economics Association, Manitoba, has been received. Action has been taken on the motion passed by the Board of Directors in January regarding CHEA fees paid by affiliated groups with less than 30 members. Five affiliated groups currently fall into this category.

The Provincial Directors and the affiliated groups have meetings scheduled during the CHEA Conference 1983, which will again afford the opportunity for exchange of dialogue. Lively discussions are anticipated concerning the implementation of structural changes. The Affiliated Group Handbook, developed this year, is to be distributed following CHEA Conference 1983.

OFFICERS OF CHEA

Thanks to those groups which, throughout the year, have sent newsletters and reports; this information has been disseminated and has proved an effective means of communicating.

SECRETARY'S REPORT
Lorraine Labelle

The 1982-83 Executive held six meetings in Montreal. The Executive minutes are now prepared, printed and distributed both in English and French at no extra cost. The Secretary is translating the minutes.

The Operation Alert Program was handled from Montreal by the Secretary. Eleven Operation Alerts were received and dealt with. The alerts from our members expressed their concerns about the following issues:

- Safety of Orobronze product
- "Home Economics" sale ad on T.V. by Zellers' and the Bay
- Maternity benefits for adopting families
- Unsuitable reference to home economics in an article published in the Ottawa Citizen.
- Pornography to be broadcast by First Choice Pay T.V.
- CHEA input into nutrition labelling.

Three outstanding alerts were dealt with.

Liaison between the Executive and the Special Committee Chairmen and Representatives to Other Organizations continued through the Secretary.

The first part of my term of office has been a challenge, and I wish to thank Margaret Wallace for her help and support.

TREASURER'S REPORT
L. Diane Law

The following describes the activities of the Finance Committee. Creation of a strong Finance Committee has been achieved. Members include the following: Ellen Boynton, past Treasurer; Betty Shields, Chairperson of Sub-committee on Compensation; Marilyn Peabody, advisor on investment portfolio; Diane Law, Chairperson and Treasurer; and Diana M. Smith, Executive Director.

Four meetings of the Finance Committee, and one of the Sub-committee on Compensation, were held. Activities included reviewing quarterly financial statements; screening three fund-raising projects (as per terms of Fund Raising Policy): pewter lapel pins, IFHE Raffle, Winnipeg meeting on "The Cashless Society: Are You Ready?".

I participated as a member of the Executive and presented several matters to the Board of Directors for consideration, and assisted the Executive Director with the preparation of the 1983-84 budget and provided advice as required on other matters of a financial nature.

Plan for 1983-84:

- To prepare a long-range financial forecast, using the program planning and budgeting system format (PPBS)
- To undertake a review of the management of our investment portfolio
- To continue quarterly review of financial statements
- To review salary ranges for positions of Administrative Secretary/Business Manager and Executive Director
- To participate on an ad hoc committee on "Educational Workshops"
- To assist with preparation of 1984-85 budget.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S REPORT
Diana M. Smith

An annual report provides an opportunity to reflect on the past year with a greater detachment than possible in the hustle of day-to-day demands. The annual report is taking stock, an assessment of where one is at.

The management of the affairs of the Canadian Home Economics Association continues for me to be a stimulating, productive challenge, The year end 1982-83 is a promising one, showing a financial surplus after several years of deficit. This surplus is largely due to the success of the 1982 CHEA conference and to a larger-than-anticipated membership increase.

The challenge of management of CHEA is to provide (and be perceived to provide) as effective service as possible to the membership with the human and fiscal resources available. Included are

* Direct member services, such as the CHE Journal, "RAPPORT" and the membership directory, are visible tangible evidence of the benefits of membership and the efforts of many dedicated people.
* The annual conference is an opportunity for professional growth, for essential networking and for important decisions about future directions, to be made during the business portion of the annual meeting.
* Other services and programs are less visible but equally important in CHEA's function as spokesperson for home economics professionals. Contacts with government, other organizations and agencies are frequent; and communication has been on going.

In June, 1980, newly hired as Executive Director of CHEA, I was given the mandate to implement as soon as possible a consultant's report of the operations of the CHEA National Office and the cost/benefit of membership in CHEA. Three years later most of the recommendations of that review have been implemented. CHEA now uses an automated system of processing its membership and hence is able to provide more efficient service. A more aggressive membership recruiting program and follow-up has resulted in a membership increase of 11% in the last three years. A rearrangement of staff reporting relationships and responsibilities at the CHEA office has helped to establish an effective working atmosphere. The staff support to some committees has been increased to allow more effective use of volunteer time and to lighten the load, in some instances. For example, Doris Neufeld, Administrative Secretary, has in the past year assumed responsibilities as Business Manager of the CHE Journal. The CHEA National Office carries out the mandate of the Awards Committee to a large degree. In the past year the CHEA Archives have been moved to the Public Archives and are now available to researchers and others who may be interested in historical analysis of the Canadian Home Economics Association.

This year has seen the implementation of a Development Education Plan, which has included the hiring for a two-year period of Sharon Channer, International Development Officer, and support staff. This step forward will allow the Canadian Home Economics Association to more actively foster twinning programs between home economics professionals in Canada and developing countries and will also increase the awareness of Canadian home economists of development issues.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Financial constraints in the past year have decreased my work time to 80% and minimized opportunities for travel and consultation with home economists across the country. I have appreciated the few opportunities I have had in the last year to speak to and with home economists across Canada and to be aware of the broad range of concerns and involvements of professional home economists.

It has been a pleasure to participate in the deliberations of the CHEA Executive by attending Montreal Executive Meetings throughout the year and being involved in the January Board of Directors meeting. The commitment of the Executive Committee to their particular responsibilities is significant. As a member of the Finance Committee, I have been involved in many discussions and negotiations related to the short- and long-term financial management of the Canadian Home Economics Association. Consultations with committee chairmen, provincial directors and others who are involved in the day-to-day initiatives of CHEA has been rewarding and supportive.

I acknowledge the support of the staff at CHEA National Office, Doris Neufeld, Administrative Secretary, and Judith Young, Membership Secretary. Their continuing competence and attention to detail and deadlines are appreciated daily. They are the less visible part of an effective working team at the CHEA National Office.

The current budget of CHEA limits the effectiveness and scope of the Canadian Home Economics Association in meeting the real needs of its members. It is necessary in the future that the CHEA leadership defines clearly the future direction and priorities through the development of a long-range plan, and that initiatives in such areas as public relations be strengthened so that the real needs of members can be met in these areas. I look forward to being part of these negotiations, deliberations and discussions as they occur.

STANDING COMMITTEES

CHEA's Standing Committees provide the core of involvement and action of the national association. The following only summarizes the numerous initiatives of committees in the past year. It also does not list the committee members, both in core committees in the area where the chairman resides, or the "network" of corresponding members which exists in almost all committees. Complete details of accomplishments are on file at the CHEA National Office or from the committee chairman.

The Awards Committee, chaired by May Maskow, Toronto, has received applications from 16 applicants. A new award is being sought to honor an outstanding home economist in the early part of her career, to complement the existing Honor Award which recognizes a lifetime of commitment. The Awards will be announced at the Awards Luncheon during the CHEA Conference.

The CHE Journal Committee is chaired by Betty Mullen, Edmonton; and the publication is co-edited by Betty Mullen, Verna Lefebvre and Jean Wilson. In the past year the Journal Committee has been preparing a Cumulative Index of Volume 1 through 32, which will be available for distribution in the coming year. The advisory panel of Margaret Arcus, Marilyn McDowell and Phyllis Meikeljohn continue to provide helpful suggestions and advice. A particular effort has been concentrated on soliciting new subscriptions through provincial liaisons. Since summer, 1982 the Journal has been printed in Ottawa by M.O.M. Printing Ltd. Lex Limited has been acting as advertising representative since Fall, 1982 and predicts substandial increases in revenues from advertising in the future. Doris Neufeld has acted as Business Manager of the Journal for the past year and has lent excellent support to the Journal Committee. Margaret Morton, Winnipeg, will assume the role of Chairman in the near future, taking over complete responsibility by Fall, 1983.

The Consumer Economics and Management Committee, chaired by Jane McKay-Nesbitt, Winnipeg, last year published a Bibliography on Electronic Funds Transfer Systems. They continue to market this publication and plan to conduct a seminar in the fall on the topic "The Cashless Society: Are We Ready?". During 1983 the committee plans to carry through with existing projects, study the green paper on pensions, and inform members of the pertinent issues.

The Education Committee, chaired by Jean McHarg, Montreal, has met to update the "Sources of Resources" address list, which will be available again in 1983. The committee has been working on a constitution to establish education as a professional sub-section under the umbrella of CHEA. There are efforts being made to assess the effect on "home economics" programs of the trend in education to move "back to the basics". Further developments will be communicated. The committee has planned a computer workshop for Conference '83.

The Extension Committee is chaired by Bernice Olson, Wetaskiwin, Alberta. She has spent the year establishing a network of links across Canada and has circulated a questionnaire to determine how the needs of extension home economists could be better met.

The Family and Human Development Committee, chaired by Barbara MacDougall, has focused their activities around the objective of encouraging the inclusion of family life education programs in schools throughout Canada. Barbara MacDougall conducted a workshop at the Adolescent Pregnancy Symposium in Saskatchewan, and other programs are being planned in the near future. The CHEA Adolescent Pregnancy position paper has been promoted by dialogue with appropriate government ministers in four provinces.

The Foods and Nutrition Committee, chaired by Lynda Clark-Lowry, has continued with its major activity to counteract nutrition misinformation wherever possible through monitoring the popular press, and writing book reviews and journal articles. The conference session "RNI at Work - How Does it Affect Yours?" will discuss the changes to the Canadian Dietary Standard and how they affect home economists.

The executive of the Home Economists in Business have been located in Calgary. Co-chairmen Jane Carlyle and Marjorie Halliwell have organized a half-day professional development workshop during the CHEA Conference; and with the assistance of Cathy Peck, Judy Welden, edited three HEIB newsletters. The HEIB directory was published in 1982, as usual.

STANDING COMMITTEES

The International Development Committee has an active national committee in Ottawa, Co-chaired by Diane Stump, Ottawa, and Marie Slusar, Edmonton. Sharon Channer, with CIDA support, has been hired as International Development Officer for a two-year period beginning January 31, 1983. Support from CIDA has been received for salary and related expenses, as well as initiatives in development education. Six "twinning" projects have been initiated between local associations in Canada and those in developing countries (Calgary/Sierra Leone, Ottawa/Thailand, Saskatoon/Ghana, Toronto/Caribbean, New Brunswick/Senegal, Manitoba/Native Association). In the past year six development education projects were supported by CIDA (articles on cultures and textiles; a series of radio tapes, "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle"; a provincial workshop in New Brunswick; a 1983 pre-conference workshop in New Brunswick; and support (pending) of a workshop in conjunction with IFHE. Numerous activities have been carried out by affiliate IDC's. Full details are available from the CHEA National Office.

Lois Arnold, Guelph, chairs the CHEA Membership Committee. The goal of increasing membership will be best achieved by informing potential members of the advantages of being a CHEA member. To this end, the committee has defined affiliated group members as a particular target and is planning promotions to reach them. Educational workshops are being supported as another tangible benefit of belonging. Contact has been established with the Public Relations Committee.

A list of press contacts is being drawn up as a resource for future personal contact. A booklet "Projecting the Home Economics Image" is being compiled and will be distributed in July, 1983 at the Special Group Session organized by the Public Relations Committee. Five CHEA Executive Meetings and the January Board Meetings were attended. Cooperation with the Membership Committee was established. Articles were prepared for "Rapport" and "Communique" to facilitate public relations. Some time was spent in studying the establishment of Educational Workshops by CHEA, and this will require attention by Public Relations in the next year.

The Textiles and Clothing Committee chaired by Rose Fedorak have investigated support for several projects related to satisfaction with clothing and are seeking funding for a national survey.

SPECIAL COMMITTEES

INTERNATIONAL FEDERATION FOR HOME ECONOMICS
Kari Balzersen Guraeshi

This has been an exciting year for IFHE-Canadian participation. There was one-hundred per cent representation to the IFHE Council Meetings in Strasbourg, France, July 26 - 29, as all ten Canadian member organizations were represented, including representation to IFHE committees. Our congratulations and best wishes to Doris Badir, Dean, Faculty of Home Economics, University of Alberta, who was elected Vice-President, Americas Region. Our thanks go to the former Vice-President, Linda Reasbeck, who made an outstanding contribution to IFHE as chairman for the XIII IFHE Congress in Ottawa in 1976 until the end of her term as Vice-President in 1982.

The Canadian resolution for an "International Year of the Family" was passed at the Council meetings in Strasbourg and has since gained considerable international and national momentum. We are continuing our efforts in soliciting support for the resolution in order to receive serious consideration at the United Nations General Assembly.

Plans for a Canadian "International Day for Home Economics" are in the making. This day is to serve as a public relations and fund raising event for IFHE.

The CHEA Finance Committee has accepted our proposal for the raffle of a handknitted Norwegian cardigan to promote an interest in IFHE and the XV Congress in Norway, July, 1984.

CHEA, at its January Board meeting in Montreal, voted to establish a CHEA-IFHE travel fund. The fund is starting off with a modest sum of money, but the official recognition for financial aid to Canadian home economists to attend the IFHE executive, committee and council meetings is very much appreciated.

Revised "Terms of Reference for IFHE Representatives" in Canada was sent out to affiliated groups this year.

Four Canadian home economists attended the IFHE Paris meetings in January, 1983. Representatives to the executive were Doris Badir, Vice-President and Carmelle Therien-Viau, Treasurer. Representatives to committees were Emily Reid and Joanne Mackie. The report on the work of the committees is to be presented at the XV Congress in Norway, July, 1984.

Joanne Mackie represented Canada as a facilitator at the IFHE-U.N. Workshop in Lome, Togo, March 9 - 16, 1983, and later as a guest for a three-day visit to Nigeria on the invitation of the Nigerian IFHE representatives.

Plans for a Canadian International Development Workshop at the XV Congress in Oslo, July, 1984, are being finalized at the CHEA Conference in Saint John in July, 1983. We have enjoyed a closer link with the CHEA International Development Committee this year.

One of our priorities remains: increasing Canadian individual and organizational memberships to IFHE. At this stage in the IFHE organization, we do not ask primarily what IFHE can do for us, but we focus on what we, as Canadian home economists, can contribute to further strengthen the International Federation for Home Economics.

PROVINCIAL DIRECTORS

CHEA's Provincial Directors are the focal point of communication and leadership among home economics professionals at various levels. Their individual reports reflect a significant amount of activity and initiative and are on file at the CHEA National Office.

- Membership Promotion "Strengthening the Network": Building a stronger organization has been a priority of CHEA in the past year. Provincial Directors have taken many initiatives to increase visibility and awareness of the services proviced by the national association.

- Communication: A valuable role is played by the Provincial Director in pinpointing new talent, leadership in meeting requests for support from committee chairmen, executive members, etc. Where many associations exist, the Provincial Director has a significant part to play in informing various groups of concerns and priorities.

- Leadership: As members of the CHEA Board of Directors, Provincial Directors represent the interests and priorities of their areas and, more importantly, shape the national association through their decisions in shaping national policy. Considerable personal commitment of time, expertise and money is provided. Some Provincial Directors are members of provincial executive committees, serve on standing committees or provide support in ad hoc committees.

- Representation: On executive committees, at graduating student ring ceremonies, at workshops and conferences, Provincial Directors are key contacts between CHEA and individual home economists. They make contact with leaders in the profession and other organizations to provide a communication focus.

AFFILIATED GROUPS: A SUMMARY

Currently CHEA has 33 affiliated association, an amalgam of many diverse interests and perspectives, sharing the commonality of a goal of providing professional development for home economists. Some associations are very specialized; e.g., the HEIB groups and educators groups; others serve the broader needs of many home economics professionals.

Local associations serve particular needs in updating, networking and interaction and typically have monthly meetings. There have been a variety of formats used (dinner, luncheon and breakfast meetings, evening meetings, workshops, demonstrations, panels, etc.) to appeal to diverse needs and schedules. Meetings have focused on issues such as technology and its impact, family violence, energy conservation, innovations in child care and development, career planning, international development, time management, financial planning and management. Many local associations are involved in community services and programs such as a school milk program, speakers bureaus, etc. They provide scholarships to high school students who are undertaking study in home economics.

Provincial associations exist in all provinces, as well as the Northwest Territory and Yukon, and function in a complementary role to local groups. In several provinces there is a system of joint membership at both levels (local/provincial). Annual conferences provide the focal point of activity. Some themes in the past year have been as follows: "Education in the Eighties", "Focus on the Future", "It's Your Life: Take Charge", and "Issues and Insights". Several provincial associations honor members for outstanding achievements.

There are developing international links across the country, both through regional membership in the International Federation for Home Economics, and through active International Development Committees. "Twinning" programs are at various stages of development with Toronto-Caribbean, Saskatchewan-Ghana, Calgary-Sierra Leone, Nova Scotia-Malawi, and Ottawa-Thailand. Some groups, such as New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, have done much to increase awareness of international issues through programs and speakers.

Communication is facilitated by newsletters, which come in many forms, frequencies and sizes, but which all help to keep members informed and updated about current concerns. Professional development has been fostered through workshops on assertiveness, the impact of computers on families, tailoring, teaching and personal growth, "The Great Escape".

Particular issues in the past year have included name changes, educations cutbacks, and professional service. In Ontario, home economists in both professional associations (OFSHEEA, OHEA) and local associations have been actively lobbying to change the direction of decisions regarding the future of Family Studies in the Ontario school system. A new curriculum in Quebec has put much attention on teacher training. The New Brunswick Home Economics Association has presented a brief to the provincial government, urging compulsory Family Life Education programs. Saskatchewan home economists have mounted an effective lobby to introduce home economics extension services in Saskatchewan. They have also been considering a name change of the association. Registration and licensing of home economics professionals has been emphasized in Manitoba, Alberta, Ontario and Quebec. Continuing concerns related to leadership, financing and commitment of membership are evident in the reports of many associations.

FINANCIAL STATEMENTS:
An Overview by L. Diane Law

The financial picture for CHEA as at March 31, 1983 is much brighter than was forecast. CHEA ended the year with a net revenue of $10,957, instead of the budgeted deficit of $17,434. This favourable variance is due to the revenues from membership fees, the Edmonton conference and investment income being over budget in the amounts of $5,457, $12,338 and $3,035, respectively. In addition, since the budget figures were based on a 12-month year, while the actual year consisted of only 11 months (due to the change to a fiscal year ending March 31 instead of April 30), certain expense items such as rent, salaries and office equipment were over-estimated in the budget.

It should also be noted that the CHE Journal produced a net revenue of $6,007 instead of the projected loss of $705. This result was primarily due to increased advertising revenues.

In summary, it is encouraging that during a recessionary year, CHEA managed to hold its own financially.

NOTES TO ACCOMPANY SCHOLARSHIP FUND AND RUTH BINNIE FUND FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

The CHEA Scholarship Fund awarded two scholarships in 1982-83. The Mary A. Clark Scholarship ($2,000) was awarded to Linda Lusby, Halifax, and The Silver Jubilee Scholarship ($2,000) was awarded to Susan Turnbull, Fredericton.

The year saw a significant increase in revenue due to effective investment and management, and equity has been increased.

The Ruth Binnie Fund yielded greater income than expenditures in scholarships once again due to lack of sufficient qualified applicants. Betty Stafford Smith, Baie D'Urfe, Quebec, and Melodie Goosens-Conlon were each awarded $3,000 scholarships for full-time study. Barbara Legg, St. Catherines, Ontario, was awarded a partial scholarship for part-time graduate study.
